COMBINATION FOR ADJOURN-MENT WILL PREVENT IT.

Powers and King Believed to Want a Number of Ballots-Republicans the duplay. Will Oppose Because They Desire a Protracted Fight-Three Caucuses Last Evening.

There will, in all Hilplihood, be a pro-onged joint session today. The Powers possible between moon and I o'clock. They will, in all liketihood, be aided by the King men, who say that they feel with their lead they can safely force an issue. There will, of course, be oppossible from the Republican siste of the house and the Cannonites, but it is expected that enough can be found who are aixious to see the context reach a specify spillus, as that these. possible between noon and & c'clock, favor a number of ballots may have their will.

"I'm willing to have them take a hundred ballots," said Judge Powers hast ovening, "the more the merriet. Lat them keep at it all day, if they will. We shall grow stronger every ballot."

It is not even probable that any one candidate will approach near to an election during the day. That is not in the programme, for, should any one candidate seem to near the danger point, there will be a conterfed movement by the other fellows for an adjournment, and they will probably have their way. The Republican members, in such case, would, without doubt, join in a movement for adjournment, for it is in the books that they desire to have the context last until they have compilmented a dozen or more liepublicans.
